(Special to The Herald)

Washington, Feb. 3.—The state department last night sent a pre-emptory message to Germany (that it immediately release all of the prisoners of war taken to that country on the prize of war Yarrowdale. Ambassador Gerard today transmitted the names of these prisoners.

So far as known, they are still prisoners of war.

Among these prisoners are two from the steamer Mount Temple, Raymond Glibb, of Farmington, N. H., and Harold Hinkley, Kennebunk, Me.

The foreign office advised that all but the doctors and veterinarians are confined in the detention camp at Donauwien in West Thalen. They will probably be taken to the permanent prison at Carlsruhe tomorrow.

President Addresses Joint Session of Congress at Two O'clock--Ambassador Gerard at Berlin Recalled and Count Bernstorff Handed His Papers

INDIANA GIVES PRESIDENT HER SUPPORT

(Special to The Herald)

Indianapolis, Feb. 3.—President Wilson was unanimously pledged support by the Indiana house of representatives today. A committee of five house leaders of both parties was appointed to notify him after the break with Germany.

LANSING IS CALLED TO WHITE HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 3.—Secretary Lansing was summoned to the White House just before 11 o'clock. "I can say nothing," he said. Secretary Lansing remained there for fifteen minutes and when he came away he refused to talk.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Diplomatic relations with Germany have been broken off. This was made plain in official circles today although official announcement will not be made until after President Wilson addresses a joint meeting of Congress at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

It is understood here that Ambassador Gerard was instructed by Secretary Lansing to ask for his passports today.

The actual presentation of his passports to Count Bernstorff will not take place until after President Wilson has delivered his message to both branches of the house.

It is stated that the President decided upon this action immediately following his conference with the Senate yesterday. He sent word to Secretary Lansing to get in touch with Ambassador Gerard at Berlin and direct him to ask for his papers. It is expected that this has already been done.

Until the President's address, no official announcement will be made of the severing of relations.

The President's address will review the various events that have led up to the rupture between the two countries. He will say that the action of the German government in withdrawing its pledges made in connection with the Sussex incident threw the situation back to the original question of submarine warfare.

At its face valuation the only alternative left for the United States was to break relations with Germany.

Secretary of State Lansing, when told that this information had been learned, would not confirm it, but said that it must have come from the President.

Count Bernstorff, when he received the news that this country had decided to break relations, expressed disappointment, but added "There is nothing I can do."

It is intimated that after he receives his passport he may make some statement.

The ambassador looks for the United States to guarantee him and the members of the embassy safe conduct.

It was stated that the President's address had been completed, but it would not be given to the press until after it had been delivered at the joint session.

As soon as he learned that the issue passed and that he was to go home in the near future, Count von Bernstorff called all the members of the embassy staff before him for a conference.

Members of the senate and house as soon as they heard the news tried to get in touch with the White House to see what procedure would be taken. All were told that nothing could be said until after the President had delivered his message.

Senators and members were willing to advance the hour, but Secretary Lansing said the hour had been fixed.

It was said that the moral effect of a break between the United States and Germany would be very great.

In official quarters the feeling was of the utmost gravity. It was learned that the last word of the President to congress is a fervent prayer that the United States will not be drawn into war.

At 11:07 the house of representatives adopted without debate the resolution calling for the joint session at 2 o'clock.

President Wilson says that only experts will make him believe that Germany desires to sacrifice the friendship of the United States. "It will come again to congress if American lives and ships are sacrificed."

Count von Bernstorff was handed his papers at 2 o'clock.

The President finished reading his speech at 2:15 o'clock.

The President said at the time of the Sussex episode the government addressed a note to Germany stating if this was the policy of the imperial government, the United States must consider the sacred rights of travel and there is only one course that the government is now forced to pursue and that is to sever diplomatic relations with Germany.

Ambassador Gerard Recalled

Washington, Feb. 3.—Ambassador Gerard was ordered recalled from his post as ambassador at Berlin. At 12:15 o'clock this was officially announced.

The intent of the conference is to have officials of industries and chambers of commerce, welfare directors and representatives from labor and immigration departments and commissions discuss ways and means of Americanizing the foreign immigrants that come to this country.

Dr. P. P. Claxton, U. S. Commissioner of Education opened the sessions by presenting Frank Trumbull, chairman of the Immigration Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. as chairman of the meeting. "Industry and Americanization" was the topic discussed by Mr. Trumbull.

Henry W. Hoyt, chairman of the committee on Americanization of the Board of Commerce, presided at the afternoon session and discussed "Americanization in Detroit."

Industrial Manager Adams, in Letter to the Board of Trade, Says Good Men Are Leaving Portsmouth on this Account

In a letter to the Portsmouth Board of Trade Industrial Manager of the Navy Yard L. S. Adams, points to the fact that the lack of suitable houses and apartments in the city is hampering the development of the Portsmouth Navy Yard more than any other one condition. In his letter, written yesterday, Mr. Adams appeals to the Board of Trade to take up the matter in a serious manner, and as he sees it, points out that the citizens of Portsmouth and the Board of Trade hold the future development and prosperity of the yard in their own hands. The full text of the letter follows:

FIVE-MINUTE TALKS BY NATIONAL LEADERS

Mr. John A. Topping, chairman of the board of directors of the Republican Iron & Steel Co., is one of the leading spirits in the movement to organize America for industry and efficiency. At the request of the International News-Service he has written the following article on "Will America Wake Up?"

I believe that one of our national weaknesses is a lack of understanding by a large part of our people of what constitutes our national ideals. This lack of understanding and want of unity of purpose is not wholly confined to our foreign-born, for, through the influence of our patriotic indifference, this spirit has been communicated to many of our native-born.

The remedy for this condition of public mind is to be found, I think, in a broader education of the people. As a step in this direction there should be fuller publicity given all matters affecting the national welfare and a further participation in public affairs by all business men, so that some practical ability will at least supplement the academic thought upon which we have been too dependent heretofore for the solution of national problems.

If we are to have a government "by the people for the people," the people should be more fully qualified for their responsibilities, for in no other matter can the legislative initiative be taken away from the citizenry. It required the stimulus and responsibilities of war to awaken England to the possibilities of her present accomplishment. Confronted as we now are by the great responsibilities of peace and the consequent world-wide readjustment of values, together with the great economic problems resulting from the war, is it not time to arouse ourselves to our responsibilities and issue a call for volunteers to assist in the work of reconstruction?

The lessons taught by England and other belligerent countries respecting the application of co-operative efforts not only for national defense, but to enforce economy and increase production, also for the conservation of national resources, clearly points the way to us for preparedness and peace.

The London Statist, in a recent review of England's co-operative accomplishment, interestingly refers to progress made under war conditions in building up new enterprises, in mobilizing English dependents upon imports, in providing ways and means for this accomplishment, in government loan was authorized to assist such private enterprise. Government encouragement has also been given to promote consolidation of large industrial enterprises and for the formation of syndicates, not only for the centralization of purchases, but also of sales. Provision was also made for the development of scientific research through the establishment of governmental bureaus. Thus it will be observed that all kinds of combinations within these countries were created and furthermore, combinations between the various belligerent countries themselves have been formed to promote and encourage commerce between the various allied countries.

To emphasize the contracting principles of governmental policy employed at home and abroad, it may be said that we enforce under anti-trust laws, wasteful and destructive competition, while our principal rival nations legalize pools and syndicates and even governmental participation in the management of industry is given, when necessary to conserve national resources or promote national welfare.

The objection may be raised that European co-operation is socialist, but this objection is sentimental, for by the application of the principle of co-operation we can advance the spiritual and material well-being of our country; such a change in policy being only the natural evolution suggested by experience, rather than a revolution, for many of our political traditions born of other conditions should be cast aside.

A member of our Federal Trade Commission stated recently that what business needs is constructive statesmanship. Business in my opinion, is not as short of constructive statesmanship as are some other fields of activity, not the least of which is the field of government. Through the creation, however, of our various governmental commissions, such as the Federal Trade, Tariff, Reserve Board, Shipping Commission and possibly others, it may be said that we have all the machinery necessary for doing business along co-operative lines, but unless a broader governmental co-operative spirit is manifested than that evidenced by the present administrative policy of creating government competition by the production of commodities heretofore properly belonging to private enterprise exclusively, and furthermore, unless we remove the antagonistic influence of discriminatory tax and revenue laws which now places the burden of maintaining the government expenses on the few, to the exclusion of many, if an of opinion that the growth of patriotism will be retarded for no real interest can be created in government or anything else unless all participate in its support.

On the other hand if the co-operative power of the press is properly used to emphasize our responsibilities, not only as a government, but as a people, and all forces work with a unity of purpose on a broad basis of co-operation, the results, in my opinion, will exceed our most optimistic expectations.

As the Hon. Charles E. Hughes very aptly states the proposition: "We have not the basis for success. What we need now is the motive power of unswerving loyalty and a real consciousness of national unity which will fill us with a dominant sense of patriotic loyalty to the U. S. Under this general thought, our slogan would be: Patriotism, preparedness, prosperity and peace."

BOXING NOTES

It would be hard to pick from the pugilistic talent of New England a better bill than that which is offered by the Triple A. at the Grand Opera House, Boston, next Tuesday evening. There will be four bouts, taking in the four classes from bantam to welterweight. All of the boys are noted for their ability to fight, and the fans are assured of plenty of thrills. The dopests predict at least two knock-outs in the four bouts.

On paper, Joe Connelly should win over George Alger of Cambridge in their twelve-round journey, billed as the main event. But Alger has a wicked stomach punch, and Joe's weakness is in his midriff. Unless Connelly puts over one of his heavy whallops to the jaw and wins the bout in its early stages, he is very likely to find himself in a lot of trouble. Alger is a glutton for punishment and has great staying powers. No matter how one views this affair, it looks like a very speedy fight from the moment the going sounds them at it, for while Alger is a veteran, yet he is in perfect shape and can be relied upon to give any boy his weight a tough battle.

The curtain-raiser will bring together Kid Labarge of Manchester, and Pat Owens of Cambridge. This bout is good enough for a main attraction, for these bantams have battled twice before in the club and each has gained a decision by a shade, after ten terrifically fast rounds. In their last bout at the Triple A, Labarge's strength kept him the decision on the last two rounds, the first eight being even.

Kid Chalks of Manchester meets Howard McLean of Cambridge in the second ten-rounder. McLean is clever and has plenty of ring sense, but the Manchester boy is also fast and aggressive, with admirable style. In the third ten-round match, Pat McCarthy will face Joe White of South Boston. Pat likes heavy slugging, but will have to fasten his famous right to White's jaw for a clumber to win from the clever, hard-hitting South Boston lad.

Samuel Weston of State street on Saturday reached another milestone in life's journey.

BEACHAM WAS FROZEN TO DEATH

Ossipee Man Believed to Have Sustained Ill Turn and Thrown From Sleigh in Runaway.

Ossipee, Feb. 3.—Ernest Beacham, real estate and lumber dealer, missing from home here since Jan. 12, was found yesterday a short distance from his sleigh in the Plummer woodlot on Cotton Hill, East Wolfboro, by Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Plummer, members of the searching party, who have been hunting the past four days.

The mystery of Beacham's disappearance is now cleared. Plummer found the sleigh tipped on its side in the path about one mile from the road. Ex-Sheriff Myron Johnson of Union and Elmer Beacham of Somerville, Mass., in charge of the search, were notified. The search was then conducted in the location of the sleigh.

The body was found in the deep snow, lying on the side, with the head well covered with the fur coat, and inside and the other over the head, and the body completely covered with ice and snow.

Medical Referee B. Frank Horne of Conway was notified. It was impossible for him to visit the scene, and he instructed his assistant, Dr. Clow of Wolfboro, to take charge. The body was moved to undertaking rooms at Ossipee.

Marks on the head showed that Beacham was made senseless by a blow on the head, believed to be caused by striking a tree, and death was caused by freezing. A large roll of money and other valuables were found on his person.

Beacham, who of late had been subject to spells of illness, is believed to have been stricken ill while on the road, this allowing the horse to turn into the woodroad. It is thought the horse became frightened and ran, throwing Beacham out, then cleared itself from the sleigh and ran a long distance to the doorway of James Whittier, where it was found.

It is believed that Beacham was suffering with one of the spells when seen by Dan Cotton standing in the road. Beacham was 38 years old. He was born in Water Village, a son of John Everett Beacham. For a few years he drove a stage between Tiptonboro and Ossipee and ran an express between Ossipee and Rochester. He also conducted a large delivery stable for years. Mr. Beacham is survived by his father, two brothers, Elmer of Somerville, Mass., and George of Wolfboro. The funeral will take place from the Andrews home Sunday afternoon and burial will be at Water Village.

FRAUDULENT COLLECTORS HITTING MOTOR BOAT MEN

One of the latest "get-rich-quick" schemes for the schemers has been pulled off in Newburyport by several men forming a party and claiming to represent themselves as connected with the Motor Boat Preparedness movement. They have been collecting funds for membership in the United States Motor Boat Squadron and a number of motor boat owners in that city and vicinity have been stung. Not content with working among motor boat owners alone they have approached a number of businessmen, many of which have contributed to the preparedness fund from patriotic motives. The men are branded as frauds and are collecting without authority from any reputable organization.

HOUSING CONDITIONS HAMPERING NAVY YARD

to seriously hamper the development of this yard, and in that way to affect also the increasing prosperity of this community as a whole.

The matter to which I refer is the lack of adequate housing, apartments, etc., for the increasing force of this Navy Yard. This yard has grown tremendously in its work during the past few years, and will continue to do so if we can get men to come here and remain in this locality. For a good many months past we have from time to time been calling on new men and we need more men in certain lines of work at the present time. A number of men who have come here have taken their families and have left for the sole reason that they could not find adequate houses or apartments in which to live and house their families, and this condition is increasing more and more as the force of the yard increases.

To show you how the yard has grown, the following figures are given for your information:

Average number of men employed during month of January, 1913, 908; 1914, 924; 1915, 1162; 1916, 1326; 1917, 1672. (The month of January has been chosen as being the average slackest time of the year.)

Payroll for entire year: 1912, $854,746.61; 1913, $897,036.46; 1914, $950,481.67; 1915, $1,091,468.20; 1916, $1,314,841.20.

The payroll for the month of January, 1917, is decidedly the largest in the history of the yard, and amounts for this one month alone to $149,662.85. On the basis of this force continued through the year, the yearly payroll for 1917 would be in the neighborhood of $1,800,000. As a matter of fact, with the work in sight and expected, I believe that even this figure will be exceeded.

The work of the yard has grown tremendously in the line of manufactured articles and will unquestionably continue to grow in that line. The total values of these manufactured articles, including labor and material, for four years past are about as follows:

Year
1914—429,000.00.
1916—1,003,000.00.

We have now very nearly completed the submarine I-8 at a contract allotment of $528,000. We are just beginning submarine O-1 with an allotment of $647,000, and also the larger 800-ton submarine at a contract allotment of $1,300,000. The yard, is, therefore, extensively advancing in the construction of submarines and we may confidently look for increased work of this kind in the future, provided we can get and keep the men required for this work. An increased force of men will soon be required as these two new submarines advance in construction.

While the increase in the work of the yard has been obtained strictly on the merit of the yard and by what it can do, and while it lies mainly along the lines of manufactured articles and new construction of submarines, the work is likely to increase also in the matter of repairs to vessels. When the new and large building program for the increase of the navy as a whole becomes completed it is believed that the Navy Department will find it necessary to assign more and more ships to Portsmouth. Apart from this, however, the yard is growing fast along its other lines of work. This growth is bound to continue if we can continue to turn out the work promptly and efficiently. We cannot do this unless we can obtain an adequate working force, and we cannot retain that force unless adequate housing facilities are available. The supply of suitable houses is decidedly deficient even for the present force of the yard.

In view of the foregoing and as a matter affecting not only the yard itself, but the general prosperity of the community as a whole, I thought it advisable to take this matter up with you so that it may be properly presented to the business men of Portsmouth. The erection of a number of suitable houses and apartments is, in my opinion, fully warranted and needed at the present time, to stay nothing of the future needs which are bound to be greater. This is undoubtedly a sound and paying business proposition. Houses and apartments should be constructed to rent for about $15.00 or $20.00 per month, with a limited number to rent for possibly about $25.00 or even some at $30.00 per month. The greater part of the houses would, of course, be required for yard mechanics; some would, however, be required for higher paid specialists, draftsmen, etc. I think that the force of the yard may be reasonably expected to increase to something like 3,000 men within the next several years, and that is almost double the force that is employed at the present time. You will note that the present force is almost double what it was three and four years ago. I might add, also, that there have been no appreciable furloughs or discharges during the past two years. The increasing work has made it possible to arrange the general work of the yard so that there have been no specially slack periods. This is of course conducive to general prosperity.

This whole matter is an urgent one and it is hoped that the people of Portsmouth and Kittery will see it in that light so that steps may be taken for the immediate construction of numbers of houses of this character, both in Portsmouth and in Kittery. Otherwise the yard can advance little further than at present and the increasing prosperity of this community will be halted.

Very truly yours,
L. S. ADAMS,

STAGE SET FOR THE SUFFRAGE BILL

MAJORITY OF SENATE COMMITTEE FAVOR REPORTING FAVORABLY ON PROPOSED MEASURE.

Concord, Feb. 2.—The senate stage is set for consideration of the woman suffrage bill, introduced by Senator Collins of Danville, the committee as forecasted yesterday, having prepared three reports. Briefly the majority of the committee have agreed to recommend the passage of the bill; a minority will report that it is inexpedient to legislate, and the third report will recommend that the women of the state be given opportunity to vote and register their wishes as to whether or not they favor suffrage for their sex. Whatever debate there will be on this question is expected to take place Tuesday morning unless the program, as now arranged, is again changed.

"Prescott," and his co-worker, Miss Hope Eden presents a rather unique offering embracing many difficult tests of thought transference, more commonly known and incorrectly termed "mind reading."

While any number of artists have appeared in the various theatres throughout the world, demonstrating the possibilities of mental thought suggestion, it has remained for this young couple to delve into the psychic force in real earnest and bring forth the true explanation, conclusive proof of its reality and a performance of high calibre, which will convince the most skeptical person that a thought can be transferred by the mind just as easily as a message can be transferred from one wireless instrument to another.

CROSS, FEVERISH CHILD IS BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated give "California Syrup of Figs."

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative" and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

DANCE TO FOLLOW BASKETBALL GAME.

Following the basketball game between the 1st Company, C. A. C. and the Marine team, at the Portsmouth Armory on Tuesday evening a dancing party, complimentary to all attending, will be held. Refreshments, including legs, cake and punch, will be served, the refreshments being furnished by the members of the Marine team. The game should be fast as both teams intend getting into the game with their best men. This is in reality the opening game for the Marines and Captain Cunningham will use his first string men. Lieutenant Naylor, director of the athletics for the Guardsmen, is also putting his strongest men on the floor and the spectators will be treated to some mighty fast action.

WILLIAM HOLD SHOOT HIGH SCORE.

In the postponed meeting of the Portsmouth Rifle Club, held over from the Mid-Winter Fete of Wednesday evening, for members of the club, competing for a bronze marksmen's medal, William Hold shot a score of 33 last evening on the range, winning against a large field. The meeting was a big success, a large number turning out for the competition. Mr. Hold was four points ahead of the next competitor. The second place was won by E. P. Wyatt with a score of 29, and Harold Weston shot 27 out of a possible 100 for third place.

GERMAN EFFORTS CAN'T PREVENT A VICTORY

Paris, Feb. 2.—

Near Admiral Lacaze, minister of marine, speaking in the senate today, declared that only one-half of one per cent of all the tonnage which entered French ports, during the last eleven months has been sunk by German submarines. He said this percentage might be a little higher in the future but that no efforts of the Germans could prevent the final victory of the allies.

Admiral Lacaze spoke in reply to an interpellation by Senator d'Estournelles de Constant in regard to the responsibility of the government in the submarine warfare. Senator d'Estournelles criticized the administration for allowing the Germans to take the upper hand in the submarine campaign. In his reply Admiral Lacaze said:

"The Germans are trying to do now what they always have done. They would ought to know that they have endeavored to terrify us since the beginning of the war. Disregarding the humanitarian engagements they made at The Hague, they have not hesitated to throw crews and passengers into frail boats and abandon them to the waves in tempests far from any coast. In a great many cases, even recently numbers of their victims who could not be reached in time, died of hunger, thirst and cold. What monstrous crime than that the Germans do? There is not a man in the world who has not learned with horror of the deeds of which the Germans have been guilty. The declaration of today does not move us. The army, the navy, and civilians all maintain the same calm before the horrible crimes of our enemy."

SPAIN REFUSES TO DISCUSS GERMAN NOTE

Madrid, Feb. 1, via Paris, Feb. 2.

The minister of the interior has announced that the war and navy departments have given the naval and military authorities instructions required by the gravity of the circumstances. Premier Romanones was in conference with U. S. Ambassador Joseph B. Willard from midnight until 2 o'clock. He also received the president of the Mediterranean Maritime Federation, who informed him that the federation had ten ships at sea with safe conducts given by German consuls.

Later this premier announced that, although Spain had entered a difficult hour, the government would neither close parliament nor suspend the constitutional guarantees. He declared, however, that the administration would refuse to discuss the German note in either house, and urged everyone to keep calm. A subsequent conference was held between the premier and the president of the chamber of deputies, after which Count Benjamín stated that it was useless to deny that the country faced a very difficult situation.

In spite of the premier's statement

Referring directly to the question of Senator d'Estournelles, Admiral Lacaze said that he could not repeat information given in the secret session, but that the government had neglected by means of defense.

"Fifty-one million tons of merchandise," he said, "entered our ports during the last eleven months. One half of one per cent has been sunk by submarines. Possibly, in the future, this proportion will be a little higher, but the sole result will be that the country will understand more thoroughly that we are at war. This will not affect our will to conquer. The country will support more lightly certain inevitable privations. She will think more gratefully of our soldiers who fight for her in the trenches, and of our sailors who, obscurely but heroically, often sacrifice their lives for her defense and for her provisioning."

"I have been reproached often for not having held up to view sufficiently all that the navy has done for France. I would not, under any circumstances, let it be believed that in this hour, in any post whatever, there is a Frenchman who is not doing his duty."

Admiral Lacaze declared that the advantage held by the Germans in the submarine fleet could not, in his opinion, be maintained. "For the moment," he said, "the Germans triumph and boast of being able, thanks to their submarines, to turn the blockade against the allies. It is a colossal self-deception. They pretend to gain victory by terror but they terrify no one, neither allies nor neutrals."

That discussion of the German note in the cortes would not be countenanced by the government, deputies and senators interested in shipping informed him that they intended to interpellate the ministers. Eduardo Dato, former premier and leader of the conservative party, declared, however, that nothing must be done to hamper the diplomatic negotiations of the government, for which the administration would have to take the responsibility, as it must be held to represent the operation of the country abroad. King Alfonso will return to Madrid tonight from the castle of San Luchar, in Grandia, the residence of Duke San Pedro de Galatine, where he has been stopping.

Portsmouth, N. H., Saturday, February 3, 1917.

The President Was Right.

Friends of the National Guard, and this means all the people of the country, will stand with President Wilson against any slurring of that body by those who desire a different method of providing for the country's defense. If a different organization is preferable let it come without needless delay, but in the process of changing the system it should not be necessary to cast reflections upon a body that has served the states well, and which under the direction of the federal authorities performed faithfully on the Mexican border all that was required of it.

For this reason President Wilson did well in reproving the delegation of the Maryland League for National Defense which waited upon him the other day to advocate universal military training. As a basis of their contention for a change the delegates pronounced the National Guard a disgrace and a failure and pointed to the mobilization on the Mexican border as an example of "the failure of the system."

The president heard these words with a disapproval which he made very plain in his answer to the delegation. He recognized the value of physical training, but said this could be had without compulsory military service. He declared that no one is more interested than he in safeguarding the country in the best possible way, but he was not prepared to hear the National Guard cried down as a disgrace and a complete failure.

The National Guard was formed as a state organization for service in the states only, but under the exigency which arose last year it was taken over by the federal government for the protection of the Mexican border, and possible duty beyond the boundary. It has yet to be shown that the men did not do all that was required of them in a satisfactory manner, and it is clearly out of order to cry down the National Guard as this was done by the delegation from Maryland in its appeal to the president for universal military training.

This subject is one that needs to be carefully investigated, and it will be. If it is found advisable to establish universal training such training will come, but it is not necessary or proper to reflect upon what is in advocating that which may be considered more desirable. In defending the National Guard and the system under which it operates from uncalled-for slurs President Wilson on this occasion acted as the true spokesman of the country.

Petty Politics in City Affairs.

It is really a shame that the tax payers and business men of old Portsmouth cannot get together for a united Portsmouth and wipe out politics in city affairs. It is an outrage to see the various city departments being made political "punching bags" for politicians. To remove capable men from offices requiring skill and training because of their politics is one of the moss-covered customs. With the United States about to put all postmasters under civil service it would appear that this plan can be urged in cities and towns as a step in the right direction. Portsmouth should not be made to suffer because a few ward politicians desire to benefit at the tax payers' expense. It is surprising that good, sound business men when elected by the tax payers to office feel that they should resort to petty politics in handling the city's business. This is true of Republicans and Democrats alike. Business methods ought to be adopted at city hall. Some day the voters will decide to call a halt and the city will be put on a business basis.

Jesse Pomeroy, the Massachusetts convict who has been in solitary confinement for 40 years, in the face of an offer of leniency is conducting himself in a manner to indicate that perhaps, after all, solitary confinement is the proper place for him. He insists on full pardon or nothing, and it will be easy to decide what he shall receive if he persists in this demand.

Henry Lane Wilson has withdrawn from the League to Enforce Peace, of which ex-President Taft is the head, because he thinks he detects in some of its leaders a leaning toward the world alliance idea advanced by President Wilson in his address to the Senate. This appears to be a case of "Wilson, that's all," at both ends.

Robins and other kinds of birds that usually go south for the winter have been seen in numerous northern sections of late. The open winter is probably responsible for their presence here, and it is doubtless true that more of these birds winter in northern thickets every year than is commonly supposed.

Editorial Comment

Dewey—Pershing.

(From the Nashua Telegraph.)

When Dewey sailed from Hong Kong for Manila his orders were to "find the enemy and destroy him." Those orders were never modified, and they were carried out. When Pershing set out for Chihuahua the country was told that his orders were to "get Villa." As a matter of fact, those were not his instructions; and such orders as he did have or has since received have been subject to modification and always surrounded with hampering conditions.

Pershing will be withdrawn from Mexico; and his homecoming will not be like Dewey's. William McKinley gave Dewey his orders and William McKinley meant what he said. Woodrow Wilson gave Pershing his orders—and Woodrow Wilson may make the most of it.

Pro, Patria

(From the Boston Traveler.)

Patriotism at this time is best typified by self-restraint in public utterance. It is a self-evident truth that Germany, considering all the possibilities, has decided that it is better to defy the armed opposition of the United States and wage an unrestricted starvation campaign against England than it is to have this country maintain her neutrality and continue to feed and arm the allies for the undoing of Germany and her allies.

That being Germany's position, as she faces the great crisis of the war, there is no room for doubt that the United States will be compelled to take action to maintain her rights, dignity and honor. Meanwhile, let us take to heart the words uttered last evening in New York by Charles Evans Hughes:

"We are all Americans tonight, standing behind our President, on whom this great responsibility rests. It is not a time to embarrass in any degree with private utterances those charged with this responsibility. They have the facts; they have the duty to perform. They have the sincere, loyal co-operation of every true American. The exigency of no nation can fix the limits of American rights."

There is the patriotism worth while. There is the sentiment which refreshes and exalts, even as the daily megaphone messages from Oyster Bay have compelled the judicious to close their windows and pray for a change in the direction of the wind.

The Fishing License

(From the Laconia Democrat.)

The fish and game committee in the legislature have listened to all kinds of arguments for and against a fishing license in New Hampshire and have practically decided to recommend that a license be required of fishermen, the same as hunters. The fishermen's license law is not a very radical measure and while producing considerable revenue which should be expended to improve the fishing by stocking the public waters of the state, will not work any great hardship. In the first place, boys sixteen years of age and under will not be required to take out a license, and all women will be exempt, although if the women are granted the right of suffrage we presume they will insist upon paying a license fee the same as men. Both resident and non-resident hunters' licenses will include the right to fish without any extra fee. The cost of the former is one dollar and the latter is $15. Provision is further made that non-residents who do not care to take out a combination license will be granted a fishing license upon the payment of $1. It is proposed to make arrangements so that non-residents can secure licenses at places other than the office of the commissioner at Concord. It will be seen by the above outline that the law which proposes to tax fishermen is not a very drastic measure, but simply proposes to ask the men who fish to chip in towards a fund to improve the fishing by stocking the waters and enforcing the fish and game laws. In the old days, when New Hampshire's lakes and streams were well-stocked with native fish and when comparatively few indulged in fishing, such a measure was not needed, but there are hundreds of fishermen today where there were but one or two a quarter of a century ago, and the fishing is constantly growing poorer from continual drain. New Hampshire's lakes and streams are a big asset if properly managed, and we are frank to confess that we think the fishing license is a move in the right direction.

Boycotted

(From the York Transcript.)

The booze dealers in the State are forming an organization to hurt the summer business, and keep the Conventions away from this state, according to a story in the Middleboro Journal. Fine! Seeing as Maine built up her business on booze, we are now doomed.

CURRENT OPINION

Preparedness Means Co-ordination of Our Industrial and Economic Strength.

Some day we will put aside the abomination of war, but now, while I am a member of a great many peace societies, I am one of those who believe that there may be too high a price to pay for peace. I do not think the agitation for preparedness presages war. We don't want war, and we don't believe in war, but if we ever get into it we don't want America to be found in a state of disorganization.

I don't believe militarism is engendered by what a people have. I believe it is engendered by what they want, and so I am sure that when the smoke has cleared away it will be found that America is simply taking stock to find out her resources. It will be found that preparedness is simply the welding of America into something more forceful and lovely than we ever dreamed of—lovely because it is our determination to see that the benefits of our civilization shall be widespread.

We regard preparation for war as secondary. The major consideration is the co-ordination of the industrial and economic strength of the nation and the inception of a spirit among all men as patriotic defenders of the nation.

America has grown more ideal in her relations with other nations rather than less ideal, and so a knowledge of our strength will aid us in peace as well as in war.—By Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War.

because the booze seller is going to get his. This is, of course, startling news, and no doubt, many people in the summer business are looking about to sell out their holdings. Probably in the course of a couple of years, Maine will be one great big blank space, with only the cold water boys, the W. C. T. U. and the Y. M. C. A. left.

In the meantime, however, what will become of our good roads, our magnificent scenery, rivers and lakes? Will the booze dealer transport them to some place where liquor is sold? Will he take Moosehead lake around to the County Fairs in other states and exhibit it under canvas, charging admission fee? Will we see Long Beach transported to the Food Fair in Boston as one of the side attractions? And how about Mt. Desert Island? Maybe some enterprising liquor dealer will tow it to Boston Harbor. What a dreary waste the good old state of Maine will be.

Seriously, we would welcome a boycott. If nothing more it would prove exactly how strong the liquor interests are. While we have never been a strong advocate of Maine's prohibition law, because we have never seen it enforced as it should be, now that we have a Governor who evidently is going to have his way, we welcome boycotts, or lights; and will do our part toward keeping the people informed exactly how the "war" is coming on. The way to find out whether the people of this state want prohibition—and there are many who claim it is wrong—is to enforce the law, and enforce it so rigidly that a pint of booze will be worth more than a pound of forbidden German dye. Then, we'll know just what we want, and go after it.

One thing is certain: Liquor is out of place in our world of today, and it every bit of it was to disappear over night, it would not be missed in a month from now.

RESERVE BOARD WOULD GUARD NATION'S FUNDS

And Urges Federal Reserve Banks Be Placed in Strong Position.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The need of placing the twelve Federal reserve banks which were authorized by Congress in a strong position to withstand the probable drain of gold at the close of the European war is emphasized by the annual report of the board of control.

The board states the country now has gold to the value of $3,083,200,000, in its favor, but that care must be taken in handling the precious metal in the United States.

MOTOR CAR PLANT MEETS HEAVY LOSS

Fire Throws 2000 Men Out of Employment at Detroit.

(Special to The Herald)
Detroit, Feb. 3.—Fire this morning almost completely destroyed the plant of the Saxon Motor Car Corporation, causing a loss estimated at $200,000 and threw 2,000 men out of employment.

DESTROYER ON GUARD DUTY

Will Examine All Vessels at Delaware Breakwater.

Philadelphia, Feb. 3.—Preparations for the enforcement of neutrality were made here yesterday by the collector of the port in co-operation with officials at the navy yard. The torpedo boat Jonet was stationed inside the Delaware Breakwater last night with orders to examine ships and to let none pass without clearance papers.

Four steamers, two British and two Swedish, bearing capacity cargoes, sailed from here yesterday for ports in the forbidden zone outlined by Germany. Six others obtained clearance papers. Those sailing were the W. L. Radcliffe, British, bound for Gibraltar for orders; the Cardiff Hall, British, for Plymouth; the Carlsholm, Swedish, for Alhus via New York, and the Boden, Swedish, for Narvik. All are freighters. Shipping men here say they will continue to forward their vessels as soon as they are loaded.

At the navy yard there was unusual activity about the warships of the Atlantic reserve fleet throughout the day. Jinkies and laborers were busy loading supplies on the swift scout cruiser Prairie and a large number of stovedores, carted supplies into the holds of the battleships while mechanics overhauled the machinery of the big fighting units.

The guard of marines in and about the navy yard was greatly augmented and no person will be permitted to visit the warships without special permission. The marine detachment on duty at the village of officers and sailors of the Kronprinz Wilhelm and Prinz Eitel Friedrich was doubled, 24 men; their rifles loaded with ball cartridges, standing guard about the ships.

PROMINENT LAWYER DIES AT SANFORD

Fred J. Allen Was General Counsel for the Atlantic Shore Railway.

Hon. Fred J. Allen of Sanford, well known in this city, died at his home on Friday, aged 62 years. He had been in failing health for two years.

Mr. Allen was a son of John and Caroline P. (Hill) Allen of Alfred. He graduated from Nichols Latin School, Lewiston, in 1888 and from Bowdoin College in 1890. The following August he opened an office in Sanford where he had been located ever since.

In 1900 he was elected representative. He served two terms in the house and two terms in the senate, being president of that body in 1907 and 1908.

Besides being a director in the Sanford National bank and the Fidelity Trust Company of Portland, Mr. Allen was general counsel of the Atlantic Shore Railway, the Sanford Mills, and the Goodall-Worsted company. He served as superintendent of schools in 1897-8 and was president of the Maine Bar Association.

Mr. Allen gave last March to the town the site upon which a $50,000 high school is being erected.

He was a member of Kora Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of Lewiston; also of H. radford Commandery, K. T. He is survived by a wife, Mrs. Ida S. (Leavitt) Allen, and two sons, Lawrence and Frederick; also a brother, Charles H., of Portland, and a sister, Mrs. S. J. Russell of Gorham.

Mr. Allen was a clerk at the Oceanic hotel at the Isles of Shoals for one or two seasons, while a law student.

SOME LOCAL NOTES AND COMMENTS

I met a local plumber this morning and he was all smiles, and this with the weather fairly freezing ones ears. Remarking about the inability for freeze-up, he said: "I have had fourteen calls since breakfast." And it was then only 8 o'clock. No wonder he smiled.

With the threat of food riots in Germany, has it ever occurred to you that Portsmouth could be starved out in a week? We read about England, France and Germany dealing out food under government control, and this country not at war, with potatoes selling at $2.45 per bushel, and other articles in proportion, does it not occur to you that there is need of something to help the people? Who is getting all this cash? With an abundance of potatoes, apples, flour, vegetables, meals and everything else, will someone in authority tell a people "driven to the last trench" why some relief cannot be given?

Many hundreds of munition workers are now being discharged in various sections of the country. The most recent was at Waltham on Wednesday when 150 were given their discharge. This is the rule along the line and unless something happens to bring about a resumption there will be thousands idle before the winter is over.

The going away of C. W. Bass, druggist, golfer and all around good fellow, to engage in business in the West, as announced in Friday's Herald will cause much regret. Portsmouth owes much to Mr. Bass for his fine Country club which has been one of his pets. He has been a thorough believer in the city and has made hosts of friends. He will be missed in the local clubs, as will Mrs. Bass from a large number of organizations and societies. The best wishes will go with them in their new field. Mr. Bass is bound to succeed anywhere he sets out to and here is hoping that he will make a million and then back to Portsmouth.

The settlement of the Heft claim against the J. B. Phillips Co., by J. V. Critchley, brings to the writer's mind one of the most honorable, big business men that has ever come to our notice. Mr. Critchley inherited the munition plant, fusco here. He could probably have escaped much of the loss that he met with here. Twenty-five per cent or fifty per cent on the $60,000 claims would have been readily accepted. But instead, Mr. Critchley arrived in Portsmouth one day and headed over his personal check to cover all bills. There were certain unusual complications connected with his last payment.

Portsmouth will welcome back the main office of the electric lines across the river. They should never have been taken away from an operating necessity. With the re-establishing of this office comes W. G. Meloon, the pioneer in local electric circles. There are many big things in view that may develop as a result of this change. More later on this subject.

Governor Henry W. Keyes is certain to receive a hearty welcome on the occasion of his first visit to Portsmouth. He is one of the most popular men that has ever occupied the governor's chair and Portsmouth will be delighted to welcome him here.

OLYMPIA THEATRE NOTES

Faithful to our original proclamation, quality and consistency are the keystones to our program.

We conscientiously believe that our program for the last two days of this week is the greatest ever shown in this city.

"Patria" when shown last night was greeted with applause and the comments we heard were very flattering.

Without a doubt, the first episode of this serial picture is the best beginning ever given a serial photograph.

However, the honors go to Mrs. Vernon Castle, who so charmingly and with fascination plays the role of Patria.

This picture will be shown at 8:15, 8:30 and 9:45 tonight.

"The Devil's Double" with William S. Hart is the best picture he has ever appeared in and it is even better than the New York critics said it was.

It will be shown twice tonight.

Don't miss it.

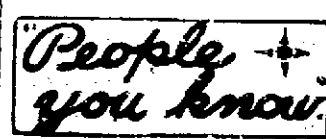

"The Final Chapter" of "The Shielding Shadow" concluded with more thrills than any other picture we have ever run.

Was it thrilling? Ask someone who was there. Ask them what the octopus did with Jerry.

Don't miss this final chapter tonight. Monday and Tuesday we shall present William S. Hart in a 6-reel special production, "The Bargain."

This picture is typically and entirely western, in fact no picture in which he has appeared on the Triangle program is so thoroughly western as is "The Bargain."

Miss Margaret Goodwin is in Boston for the week-end.

Mrs. Boardman Randall and young son Frank passed Friday in Boston.

GIFT TO NEW HAMPSHIRE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

An old-fashioned rag-carpet, woven from the wool of the sheep raised on her own farm, in Newington, has been presented to the Historical House by Mrs. John Stone McKering of Portsmouth. Her home had always been in Newington, but by the death of her only daughter, Mary Susan, which occurred a few years ago, she was left alone to manage the large farm. The care was too much for her and she sold her property to Mr. Theodore Law and removed to Portsmouth, where she now resides. Needless to say that the ladies of the society will prize it very highly for the service of the gift and much more for the love and thoughtfulness which prompted the donor to bequeath it to the society.

SIGHTED SHIPS DO NOT ESCAPE FROM U-BOATS

Submarines Can Sink Nine-Tenths in Zone, Says Naval Officer.

Blockade runners that try to elude the German U-boats in the event of the threatened renewal of submarine warfare, will have a slim chance of staying above water, if sighted, according to naval officers at the Portsmouth yard. Although these officers could discuss the question only in very general terms, they expressed the opinion that the Teutonic U-boat fighters could sink at least nine-tenths of the commerce carrying vessels that enter the forbidden seas.

With regard to the possible protection of a ship from the armament that may be provided passenger and freight steamers, one of the officers said:

"Torpedoes are effective up to 6000 yards or 3 miles at the maximum distance it is necessary for the periscope of the submarine to be about ten feet above the water to observe accurately over the curvature of the earth the speed and distance of the quarry. Since the average periscope is only eight inches in diameter it would be difficult for a gunner on the ship to hit it.

"Even if the periscope should be hit an automatic valve would shut out the water and prevent sinking. The fact that no warning is to be given and that consequently no part of the hull need appear above the water will greatly increase the measure of safety for the U-boat and in direct ratio increase the effectiveness of its operations."

"Vessels which have reported being pursued by a submarine astern were not actually being pursued at the time but were having their speed curtailed. A torpedo is seldom fired from the rear, as the wake currents would deflect the gyroscope which holds the missile in its course.

"Ships which attempt to run the blockade will doubtless be heavily convoyed. This means that many warships as well as merchant vessels, will be sent to the bottom."

WILSON CONFERS WITH DIPLOMATIC OFFICIALS

Meets Members of Foreign Relations Committee After Cabinet Meeting to Discuss Submarine Controversy

Washington, Feb. 2.—President Wilson held a long meeting late this afternoon with the members of his cabinet, the meeting lasting into early evening, when the grave question of Germany's ultimatum in the submarine controversy was discussed. The meeting was held at the call of the president and nothing of the discussion was made public. Following the meeting with the cabinet the president left for the Capitol to confer with the members of the Foreign Relations Committee and other officials. He refused to make any announcement of the discussion of either meeting and would say nothing of his intention in addressing the foreign relations committee officials.

The president's action in meeting with the committee has led to the widest speculation. Those close to the administration state unofficially that the president and Secretary of State Lansing had already prepared their ultimatum to Germany and that this ultimatum was being submitted for criticism and discussion. The silence of the president and his official family, while not pleasing to the public, is, nevertheless, not condemned as in Washington and the entire country appears to be taking the stand of saying or doing nothing which will further embarrass him.

Secret Orders for Navy. Washington, Feb. 2.—The navy department this afternoon shut down the lid on the matter of location of warships, heretofore published daily. Secret orders were issued in this connection.

London, Feb. 2.—Six more ships were reported sunk in the second day of Germany's new campaign, early this afternoon.

First was the Norwegian steamer Fortin. Then came word of the destruction of the Ivenhoe—with a loss of three members of the crew—and then the sinking of the Norwegian steamer Hecla.

Later the following additional sinkings were announced: British steamer Ewonite, Spanish steamer Algorta, Belgian steam trawler Marcelle. The last named vessel was sunk by gunfire from a submarine.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Strong official hint that some announcement of this government's course with regard to Germany's announced intention of waging unrestricted sea warfare may be looked for within 24 hours, came from the state department today. "Nothing has gone forward to Germany yet," was the only official definition forthcoming up to noon. The statement, however, that the American steamship line might be given instructions which it has requested as to permitting its ships to sail "by tomorrow" was taken to mean some course might be determined on by that time.

Such instructions could only be given after this government's position is taken. Today there was every indication that President Wilson had not made up his mind, but was still struggling with what officials openly admitted is the most serious situation this nation has faced since the European war started its flood of bloodshed across a score of continents.

No Word With Bernstorff. The official statement quoted obviously meant that the administration had not, at that time, communicated in any way with Ambassador von Bernstorff since the Teuton envoy presented Germany's announcement of her new sea order.

The cabinet meeting was set for 2:30. Usually these meetings take up from 30 minutes to an hour. The one this afternoon ran well on toward evening.

Preceding the cabinet meeting, President Wilson held a conference with Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee.

He has been in almost constant conference with Col. E. M. House, closest personal friend and adviser, since the morning after Germany's note was handed him.

It was obvious today there would be no hurried action. In fact and despite the hint of a statement of position tomorrow, there were some officials who inclined to the belief that the President may hold back his decision until he receives some word from Ambassador Gerard, as to official interpretation of certain phrases in the German note and memoranda.

Everything Before Cabinet. Every angle was before the cabinet this afternoon in writing—for Secretary Lansing, on whom will fall the brunt of answering queries, "thinks on paper."

Feeling predominates in official circles that a break with Germany is inevitable if Germany carries out to the letter her avowed intentions.

But behind this feeling is another—that the "unexpected" may be expected from the President.

There was a notable change in the appearance of officials today as compared with the gloom of yesterday. Secretary Lansing was fairly beaming when he greeted newspapermen. President Wilson, after his golf game, appeared smiling. There was one real and very evident cloud, however. This was annoyance, openly expressed in some official quarters, over the puzzling attitude of German Ambassador von Bernstorff.

An almost studied gloom surrounded the Teuton embassy. Officials were at a loss to understand the undeciphered declarations in prominent German-American circles that "Bernstorff has all but packed his trunks." They admittedly were surprised at hints from central powers diplomats that "Germany means business and will go the limit."

Said to Expect His Passports. Another undetected report was that the German ambassador expected to get his passports within 48 hours.

It was also faintly stated in German circles that if a break with America should come, Germany would choose the Spanish ambassador to handle her affairs here.

Some believed this talk more or less designed to warn Americans and American ships from going into the actual danger zone. It was pointedly remarked, in this connection, that naturally if Americans and American ships could be kept out of the danger zones, "nothing could happen."

Say U. S. "Will See Justice of German Position."

Amsterdam, Feb. 2.—Jubilant and firm conviction that America must see the justice of Germany's position are expressed in provincial German newspapers' editorials evoked by the German "barred zone" order.

The Rheinische Westfälische Zeitung said: "We confidently expect President Wilson to warn Americans from the war zone."

The Cologne Volks-Zeitung jubilantly predicts victory "over England's arbitrariness and villainy."

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE NOTES

LEGISLATORS VISITED SCHOOL ON FRIDAY.

Durham, N. H., Feb. 2.—House committees on agriculture and agriculture college with other prominent members of the House of Representatives, 60 in all, visited the college today to inspect the college buildings, and decide what are its needs. They were shown over the college, and its needs were explained.

Dinner was served in the gymnasium by enterprising Simpson and after dinner the visitors were present at the usual weekly convocation exercises, and short talks were given to the students by Professor C. F. Emerson, chairman of the committee on education, Mr. F. A. Rogers, chairman of the committee on agriculture, H. H. Holt, chairman of the New Hampshire State Grange, and a chairman of committee on county affairs, Mr. Maurice J. Connor of Manchester, and a member of the college committee, Arthur W. McDaniel of the Roads and Bridges Committee, and finally Wm. E. Beaman, chairman of the college committee.

Each of the speakers was cheered lustily by the student body led by the cheer leader, Rohl C. Wiggin. They went away impressed with the rapid growth of the college and the reality of its very evident needs.

LOWELL IS VICE PRESIDENT OF BIG RAILROAD

The many friends in this city of George K. Lowell, a former Dover boy and summer resident at York Beach, will be pleased to learn that he has been elected vice president of the Chesapeake & Curtis Railroad with his headquarters at 90 West street, New York, and general offices at Baltimore, Md. Prior to his election to the above position, Mr. Lowell was employed by a New York office as a broker's railroad expert at a lucrative salary. In this capacity it is understood that it was a part of Mr. Lowell's duties to thoroughly investigate all railroad enterprises and properties wanting to be financed, and that it was largely on his judgment that such projects were undertaken by railroad brokers.

Mr. Lowell is regarded as one of the brightest and most efficient railroad men ever raised in New England, and Dover is to be congratulated on having so representative a son in the railroad world. His Portsmouth friends also congratulate him and believe him eminently worthy of his achievements and prominence in his chosen vocation. Mr. Lowell's summer place is at York Beach, Me., and during his vacation he takes great pleasure in calling upon his Portsmouth friends for a chat. His wide experience in high railroad circles has made him an interesting conversationalist, and he is always a welcomed visitor to the good old town that gave him birth.

LINER LEAVES PORTLAND WITH MUNITIONS

Portland, Me., Feb. 2.—The Donaldson line steamer Cassandra, 3000 tons, commanded by Capt. Brown, sailed from here today for Glasgow with a cargo of munitions, foodstuffs and 600 horses. Two hours before she sailed she cancelled her passenger list. Fifteen persons were booked to sail, among them being Sgt. Donald Stephenson, who was returning to his regiment at the front.

MODERN THEATRE, INC.

Again the management of the Modern Theatre, Boston, Mass., known as the photoplay theatre de luxe, makes an announcement which stirs the entire film industry; namely, that it has obtained at a tremendous cost, the first-run exhibition rights for New England for Anita Stewart in "The Girl Philippa," a master drama produced by the Vitaphone Company and presented by J. Stuart Blackton and Albert E. Smith, in eight massive acts. The announcements read that the Modern Theatre will show America's finest actress, Anita Stewart, in the above named special feature for positively a limited engagement of two weeks commencing February 6, and will be the only theatre in New England exhibiting this marvelous production at this time.

A mere slip of a lass, a wholesome, sprightly, charming wood violet! How else can one typify Anita Stewart? Radiating the spirit of joy and naturalness—imbuing all her portrayals with that sweet, subtle quality of "soul"—Anita Stewart's characterization of "The Girl Philippa" reaches the highest point of her dramatic achievements.

On the same bill will be presented a photoplay for parents, "The Girl Who Doesn't Know." Everyone should see it whether or not they have a daughter or young sister. It will give you a new view of this important topic containing some thoroughly natural episodes of every-day life, dealing with the everlasting question, "Should parents enlighten their daughters?"

NEWBURYPORT HIT BY THE COLD WAVE

Newburyport, Mass., Feb. 3.—A cold snap swinging along the Atlantic coast struck this city early last evening and continued cold throughout the night, registering 20 degrees below zero at sunrise this morning. In the adjoining town of West Newbury and Newbury, it was 22 degrees below zero, and proved to be the coldest morning experienced in this locality for over ten years.

With free bridges, and electrified railroads, we are sure going to get ahead in the world.

ORDERS TO CLOSE THE NAVY YARD TO OUTSIDERSOnly Officers, Enlisted Men and Employees Allowed on Reservation

The first move in the serious situation now existing between this country and Germany reached the navy yard at 11.30 today when the navy department issued orders to Captain William L. Howard, the commandant, to exclude all except officers and enlisted men of ships and those at the station. Following the order, marine officers were called into conference with Captain Howard, which resulted in doubling the marine guard at the main gate and for sentry duty. Additional men were assigned to duty in the Franklin shiphouse to guard the new submarine I-8 which is nearly ready for her machinery. More marines will guard the drydock in which the North Carolina is now under repairs of her shafting. The Boston yard received the same orders and it was directed to rush the work on all ships tied up there. At present the North Carolina is waiting for new shaft couplings and could not be made ready for sea inside of sixty days even if the couplings should reach the yard in a few days. According to the latest report, the parts needed for the cruiser will not reach the yard before March.

to a small office in the building and originated from an overheated stove. The chemical engine crew extinguished the fire in a short space of time, which had worked its way into the partition. The sending of a general alarm was not necessary. The loss was less than $50.

They were unattended. Following the ceremony, Boatswain Hill and his bride left on the 10.13 train on their wedding trip which will include New York, Washington and points in the South. The bride has for several years been employed as a bookkeeper at the First National bank and has many friends. The couple were the recipients of many handsome and costly presents.

COLD WAVE HITS PORTSMOUTH AND VICINITY

Thermometer Registered From 12 to 14 Degrees Below Zero Saturday Morning.

Friday was Christmas day and the groundhog came out of his hole, stretched himself, took a good look around. One glimpse at his shadow was sufficient for him to retire to private life again for another snooze. All this, the little animal, who tradition says regulates the weather at this season of the year, did with great grace, thankful for the fact that he may be able to rest undisturbed for another six weeks.

But here's hoping that the groundhog is feeling himself. New England weather has fooled him in times past, and not so far past either. Last year he delivered the "wrong" dope, and here's hoping that he is as far wrong this year, only in the other direction. There was certainly some winter last night. A glance at the thermometer convinced one that it was cold even if he could tell no other way. Beginning at sundown the temperature broke its neck by sudden droppings.

At 6 o'clock on Market Square, the glass stood at 6 above. From then on there was a steady decline lasting until morning.

At 7 o'clock this morning the glass at The Herald office and several other places on Pleasant street, registered 12 degrees below zero and at the South End it was 14 degrees below. Reports from the surrounding towns were as follows:
